

PREPARING FOR PEACEKEEPING DEPLOYMENTS: NEGOTIATING EFFECTIVE SUPPORT AGREEMENT WITH INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS MET (MASL # P309064)

The Center for Civil-Military Relations (CCMR) custom-designed Expanded International Military Education and Training (EIMET) approved workshop course entitled "Preparing for Peacekeeping Deployments: Negotiation Effective Support Agreements with International Organizations," is conducted by a Mobile Education Team (MET). This course is designed specifically for those countries that either participate in peacekeeping operations or plan to do so. The intended audience is mid- to senior civil, civilian defense and military officials involved in the decision-making process to prepare forces for peace operations in the ranks of major to Major General and civilian equivalents from the Ministry of Defense and the national defense headquarters. The key objectives of the course are to provide instruction in: (1) instruct recipient countries in how to ascertain logistic support requirements for deployed peacekeeping operations; (2) ascertaining national responsibilities and liabilities; (3) present external logistic support options to support the force; (3) instruct on how best to evaluate external support options to meet national requirements; (4) present negotiating techniques to be used when drafting legal agreements with international organizations

CCMR's approach to teaching Preparing for Peacekeeping Deployments: Negotiation Effective Support Agreements with International Organizations is to focus delivery wherever possible to the specific conditions and requirements of the recipient country and tactical unit. In keeping with CCMR's approach to delivering instruction, priority is placed on the educational component of the assistance, reinforced by its practical application in the form of producing draft procedures and arrangements, which can be employed following review by the recipient country. They can also serve as a status report on the logistic requirements of a recipient country's peacekeeping forces for the ODC. The course objectives are achieved through the rigorous application of problem solving with particular emphasis on working with civilian and military officials in a collaborative group setting to develop relevant draft procedures/arrangements for implementation within the entire government establishment.

In the development of draft procedures/arrangements, CCMR stresses the importance of:

- (1) the need for their integration with existing processes and systems, and
- (2) the concurrent development of implementation techniques.

At the end of this course, the recipient country's civilian and military officials will be better organized and prepared to negotiate logistic support agreements with international organizations that can effectively and efficiently support national peacekeeping deployments within an international framework thereby relieving the U.S. and its allies of these responsibilities. Moreover, participants will understand how to adapt these techniques and procedures to meet changing operational requirements.

Faculty Teams

CCMR task-organizes each team in order to optimize the specific expertise requested by the ODC/SAO. However, as a general rule, CCMR faculty teams for this program are relatively small (two to three individuals) consisting of proven subject-matter experts, who are drawn from around the world.

Translation

The course will be taught in English. Where necessary, the course will be delivered with simultaneous interpretation into the local language.

Cost

For planning and programming purposes, the cost of the course will be determined on the individual basis: 1) IMET—USD 30,000 (plus travel and expenses); 2) FMF/FMS—USD 35,000 (plus travel and expenses). Actual course cost will vary according to the educational requirements of the recipient country.

Contact Information

The Primary Contact is Thomas Young (831-402-3084; tdyoung@nps.edu). Secondary POC is Matthew King (831-656-3153; mtking@nps.edu).

CCMR Operations

Naval Postgraduate School
Monterey, CA, USA

DSN: 756 3575/2366
Tel: 831 656 3575/2366
Fax: 831 656 3351
Email: ops@ccmr.org